

The Daily Courant.

Monday, November 7. 1715.

THE following Address was presented to his Majesty in the Absence of the Right Honourable George Dodington, Esq; Lieutenant of the County of Somerset, by the Right Honourable the Lord Townshend.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.
The humble Address of the Justices of the Peace, Grand Jury, and other Gentlemen, at the General Quarter-Sessions of the Peace held at Taunton, the 4th Day of October, 1715.

May it please your Majesty,

Among all the seasonable Promises and Engagements of your faithful Subjects, suffer us of the County of Somerset to approach you with Assurances, that you have there also a People as warmly devoted to your Service as the most zealous in your Dominions.

It has indeed been our Misfortune to be very ill represented in Parliament, but we have been still untainted in our Breasts. We have been overpowered, but not corrupted. Suffer us then to make these Professions of our Loyalty and Affection to your Majesty, and your august House, at this time, which the worst of Times could never induce us to shrink from or suppress.

Your Majesty will then bear with us, if the ardency of our Affection prompt us to Address you with too great a Freedom. Pardon us, Great Sir, if we are so filled with Admiration of your Royal Virtues, as to forget our Distance; and Heaven will forgive us, if we admit of more than ordinary Transports at those Blessings you have brought us, or an unusual Indignation against those base Incendiaries who themselves despise them, or would deprive us of them: Incendiaries that the worst of Ages has not paralleld: Traitors as far exceeding their Brethren of the 5th of November, as the additional Ingredients of Hypocrisy Ingratitude and Perjury can make them. Let them go on invidiously to disturb Mankind, and to fight against their Maker: Let them shew their boasted Loyalty by Rebellion, and their Religion by Perjury: Let them manifest their Love to their native Country by conspiring to make it the Prey and Plunder of foreign Armies; and let the World see their Zeal for the Church of England by the pretended Head they labour to set over it. We question not but if they kindle the Fire, themselves will be the Sacrifice. If they will not quit their Inventions, they shall perish in them: If they will not be led, they shall be driven to Repentance. If they will not taste your Majesty's Mercy, they must feel your Justice.

For our own Parts, we satisfy ourselves that we have sufficiently proved our Regard to our Constitution both in Church and State, by constantly adhering to those Principles which have placed them under Protection of your sacred Majesty. We cheerfully depend on the preservation of them from the Providence of a good God, and the Vigilance and Resolution of the best of Kings; and beg Leave to declare to your Majesty and the whole World, that as the Succession of your Illustrious House was ever dearer to us than our Lives, so we will never fail to Support and Defend it at the expence of them; and that as you have daily and hourly the Prayers and Endeavours, so you shall never want the Treasure or the Blood of us,

Your Majesty's most Loyal and Obedient Subjects.

November 3. 1715. This Day the following Address was presented to his Majesty by his Grace the Duke of Newcastle.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.
The humble Address of several of the Aldermen, the Town Clerk, several of the Common Council, Gentlemen, and other Inhabitants in and near the Borough of Boston in the County of Lincoln.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

We are very sorry we could not join with the rest of our Brethren in a late Address proposed to us; but as we cannot entirely concur with their Sentiments, so neither can we think ourselves excusable if we should remain silent, especially at this time when there have been so many horrible Affronts offered to your Royal Person and such open Violations of your Majesty's wife and just Government. We therefore with the greatest Sincerity and Humility do assure your Majesty of our steady Zeal and hearty Affection to your sacred Person and Government, and that we shall at all times be ready with our Lives and Fortunes to Support and Defend (as far as in us lies) your Majesty and your Royal Issue, in your most just and Rightful Title to the Crown of these Kingdoms, against all the Attempts of the Pretender or any of his Abettors.

We humbly beg Leave to acquaint your Majesty, that we have always stood up for the Protestant Religion in the worst of Times, and for the Protestant Succession in your Illustrious House, when it was most in Danger: And as we have a just Abhorrence of the Practices of an ill Set of Men, who would have overturned our excellent Constitution, and brought in Popery and Slavery among us, and who are still pursuing the same pernicious Designs, even to open Treasons and Rebellions; so we cannot but adore the wonderful Providence of God, in sending your Majesty to restore and preserve our Religion and Civil Rights to us and our Posterity: And we entirely rely upon the Assurances your Majesty has so often been graciously pleased to give us, since your happy Accession to the Crown of these Kingdoms, which we think sufficient to satisfy all that have a just Regard to the good of their Country.

That the same good Providence may continue your sacred Life as a Blessing to these Nations, and defeat the wicked Enterprises of all your Majesty's open and secret Enemies both Abroad and at Home, so that your Majesty and your Royal Issue may sit on the Throne of these Kingdoms to all Generations, is the constant and hearty Prayer of

Your Majesty's most Faithful and most Obedient Subjects.

From the Amst. Cour. dated Nov. 7 and 9.

Vienna, Oct. 23. 'Tis generally believed that Prince Eugene of Savoy will in a short time take a Journey to the Austrian Netherlands, whereof as it is confidently said he will be made Governor. There is Talk of a discovery lately made of a Treaty that was on Foot and near Conclusion, for an Alliance between the late King of France, the King of Spain, the Pope, the Duke of Savoy, and the Great Duke of Tuscany, who were to unite their Forces and make War against the Emperor in Italy, whenever he should be engaged in a War against the Turks; but by the death of the French King the Project is let fall.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 8.

Berlin, Oct. 29. The Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel, who was said to be gone to Straelsund, to dispose the King of Sweden to make Peace with the Northern Allies, is returned to Cassel, having been no further than Rintelen. We have received Advice that the Auxiliary Troops of Muscovy are advanced as far as Schweedt: And 'tis said they will be employed in the Siege of Straelsund, but not in the Descent upon Rugen.

Dresden, Oct. 30. On Friday last the King of Poland our Elector returned hither out of the Country whither he went to take the Diversion of Hunting. His Majesty will remain here for some time, to see what Issue the Disturbances in Poland will have, from whence General Fleming wrote for Succours against the Malecontents. But the News of the Advantage General Baudits has gained over them, brought by the Courier lately arrived from Warsaw, gives us reason to hope that Affair is at an End.
